Master in International and European Business Law
Faculty of Social and Economic Sciences

Course information

Master year 1 20 HOURS
Fall Semester 5 ECTS
Lectures (CM) and Workshops
Professor: Laurent MARUANI

Course description

The module aims at giving students a general understanding of microeconomics, based on behaviours and equilibrium involving

- supply side
- demand side
- legal and other environments

The aim is to give students the tools to understand microeconomic mechanisms that they will have to understand during their professional life, meaning present and future.

The module will be divided in six parts:

1. Fundamentals and trends
2. Supply side
3. Demand side
4. Pricing and equilibrium
5. Industrial organization and recent developments
6. Wrap up, Q & A

At the end of this module students will be able to identify the rules of microeconomic equilibrium and determine to which situations they apply, and to apply it.
